How Schools Can Work With Dr Kristy Goodwin

Concerned about digital health and wellbeing of your students and staff?
Do you want to help parents navigate their child's or teen's digital world?
Worried about the learning costs of digitally-distracted kids?

Dr Kristy Goodwin can help you.

Dr Kristy Goodwin is one of Australia's leading digital health, wellbeing and learning experts. As a former teacher (primary and early childhood), researcher and mum, Dr Kristy has an intimate understanding of how digitalised childhoods and adolescence are shaping students' health, development and learning. Kristy recognises that digital amputation isn't the solution. Instead, Kristy helps teachers, students and parents find healthy and helpful ways to tame technology, so that they can use it in productive and purposeful ways, whilst still mitigating its risks. Kristy is regularly called on by the media for her expert opinion and has an ability to cut through the hype and deliver engaging and entertaining presentations, based on science and research.

STUDENT WORKSHOPS

Kristy has an array of student workshops she can deliver in-person to students. These can be stand-alone student workshops (a minimum of two/day), or combined into a 'School Package' where Kristy delivers these alongside a staff professional learning seminars and/or a parent seminar.

TEACHER KEYNOTE ADDRESSES AND PROFESSIONAL LEARNING SEMINARS

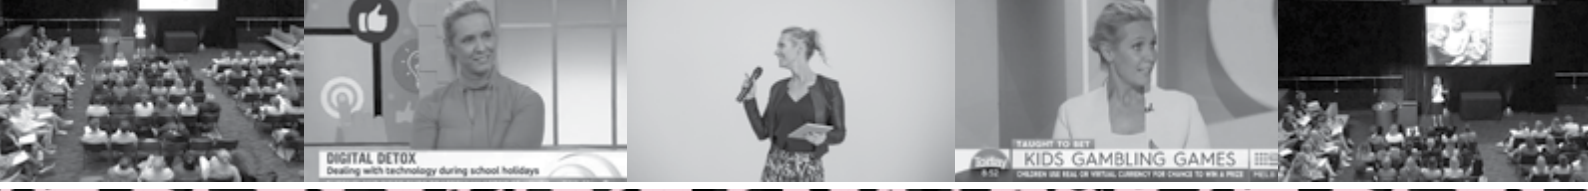

Kristy has spoken at schools and conferences throughout Australia and internationally about the impact of technology on students' (early childhood, primary and secondary sectors) health, wellbeing and capacity to learn. Kristy can deliver a keynote address at your educational conference, or a tailored professional development seminar at your school (or with a network or community of schools). Please note, Kristy is an accredited NESAs-provider for NSW teachers seeking accredited professional development.

SCHOOL PACKAGES

Many schools elect to invite Kristy to deliver a tailored School's Package, where she can deliver a combination of student workshops, teacher professional development and/or parent seminars on the same day/night. This approach ensures that all stakeholders receive consistent information and is a cost-effective way to engage Kristy's services.

PARENT SEMINARS

Kristy has spoken to thousands of parents throughout Australia about how technology is impacting kids' and teen's learning and wellbeing. She translates the latest research into practical strategies and realistic advice for parents navigating the digital world (with kids from preschool to secondary school). Kristy can deliver a stand-alone parent seminar, or can combine a parent seminar with a student workshop and/or teacher professional development session as part of a 'School Package'.

INVITE

Kristy to present a seminar to your school or community of schools. Your school (or community of schools) cover Kristy's speaking fee and invite your school community to the event. You can elect to make this a free or paid event. You're welcome to invite other local schools to this event to cover the costs. You can include a School Package with this option.

HOST

Kristy at your school. This is an option if you're able to provide a hall/venue to seat at least 200 adults. Kristy's team will sell tickets to the parent seminar and handle the booking and administration of the event. Your school or community group is asked to provide the venue for free (in return for 20 free tickets) and help to promote the event to your school community and via other local schools or community groups. You cannot include a School Package with this option.

ONLINE TEACHER TRAINING PORTAL

Kristy provides online professional development via live webinar or pre-recorded webinar replays. Teachers can now access online, high-quality professional development at a time and location that suits them. Kristy has created an online platform where teachers can view webinars, complete an online quiz and instantly access a certificate of attendance (and NSW teachers have their training count towards NESA-registered professional learning).
